Tickets to The Hermitage will be two for $19 throughout January

The Hermitage is celebrating the New Year with its biggest ticket promotion yet

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (Dec. 19, 2018) – To kick off 2019, Andrew Jackson's Hermitage will be offering a special admissions price of $19 for two adult tickets throughout January. The deal is the largest discount promotion ever offered at the presidential home and museum and is practically a two-for-one offer as adult tickets are normally $20.

“We pride ourselves in offering a location for locals and visitors from around the world to experience the life and times of Andrew Jackson while learning about 19th century American history,” said Howard J. Kittell, president and CEO of Andrew Jackson's Hermitage. “When people are looking for something fun and informative to do with their loved ones and friends this New Year, we want them to choose The Hermitage as one of their Nashville must-sees, and throughout January we hope to make the trip easier and more engaging with the two-for-$19 deal.”

Discounted admission will allow visitors access to The Hermitage grounds, mansion, exhibit gallery and museum store. In addition to this, visitors have the ability to take an interpreter-led tour of the mansion, as well as a self-guided audio tour of surrounding historic buildings and property.

Throughout January and the whole year, admission will continue to be free for active duty military and half-price for veterans, and the presidential site will continue to host additional engaging events and programs each month.

“To ensure each visit is exciting and educational, we continually strengthen our programming with new events and experiences,” Kittell said.

About Andrew Jackson's Hermitage

Andrew Jackson's Hermitage: Home of the People's President is one of the largest and most visited presidential homes in the United States. Opened as a museum in 1889, it is one of the nation's oldest presidential sites, drawing more than 228,000 visitors each year. Located 12 miles northeast of downtown Nashville, The Hermitage is a 1,120-acre National Historic Landmark with 27 restored sites and structures, 12 dating to Jackson's ownership, including his 1836 mansion and tomb, slave cabins, garden, and the church he had constructed for his beloved wife, Rachel. In the Andrew Jackson Center, guests can experience Andrew Jackson: Born for a Storm, an interactive exhibit about the life and profound impact of our seventh president on the history of the United States. Admission is free for active duty military and half-price for veterans. For more information, visit www.thehermitage.com.
